

Its pretty nice. While the websites design isn't perfect, that could be worked on later to better suit my preferences and to function better. This was a cool project that allowed me to discover the potential of HTML, CSS, and JS combined, and it was amazing when things worked the way I wanted them to.

At times, it did feel a little overwhelming, since I had to think of good design (CRAP), how I wanted to structure my code, how I wanted the website to look, what colors I should use to make the website look nice, alongside all the usual worries when coding. This negatively affected my total enjoyment of the course since it stressed me out.

Overall, it wasn't too bad.
